Multidomain Blog with AI Integration

This project is a side project using the same PHP base, with subdomains for different subjects. The idea is to host a single set of files on the website and, depending on the subdomain, display different categories, titles, articles, etc., minimizing the weight on the server. A cron task runs daily, adding new content through an AI API. It is an ongoing project.

Example of a category display.